Local Businessmen Interested in Johnson College Computer Information Technology Students

Mark Magdon and Marc Gonzalez, founders of Site2 Business Centers in Scranton, PA, visited Johnson College's Computer Information Technology class on Wednesday, February 25th to speak about their company and to offer two students the opportunity to intern for them.

Magdon and Gonzalez's Site2 Business Centers provides network security and information protection to small and mid-sized businesses nationwide, specifically in the healthcare industry.

Gonzalez explained the interest in Johnson College students saying, "[We'd] like to give back and keep k here with technology jobs, create a tech farm, and expand our business."

The two students chosen to intern with Site2 Business Centers will receive credit for the experience and 1 even be offered the opportunity to work full-time for the company after graduation depending on their performance.

Gonzalez speaks to class as Computer Information Technology Department Chairperson, Joseph Polinsky looks on.
